NOTORIOUS PRISON CAMP NEAR MUNICH IS SEIZED BY U. S. 7TH ARMY; 32,000 LIBERATED; FOLLOWS ON THE HEELS OF 3RD ARMY'S CAPTURE OF CAMP AT MOOSBURG

Patch's Columns Capture Famed Town of Oberammergau

REDOUBT IS MENACED

Soviet 2nd Ukrainian Army Pushes West Through Czechoslovakia

By International News Service Dachau, the notorious German concentration camp northwest of Munich was seized by the U. S.
Seventh Army today and 32,000 persons behind the grim stockade were liberated.

The seizure of Dachau by the Seventh Army followed on the heels of the U. S. Third Army capture of the Moosburg war prison camp where 27,000 Americans and British were freed.

Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's columns stormed into Munich after a 20-mile dash and have captured Oberammergau, famed as the home of the Passion Play.

The German redoubt in southern Europe was menaced from all directions.

Gen. George S. Patton's armor and infantry also made gains of up to 20 miles along an 85-mile front, entering the outskirts of Freising.
French First Army columns moved deeper into German defenses at the southern end of the American front while Allied forces in Italy consolidated their hold on Venice and Milan.

At the same time the Soviet Second Ukrainian Army pushed westward through Czechoslovakia from points in the Bruenn area and captured ten more towns and villages.

The Yugoslav partisans also made swift gains and broke into the Italian port of Trieste on the northwest coast of the Istrian peninsula.

Italian Fascist participation in the war was virtually at an end after Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, former commander of the executed Benito Mussolini's forces, surrendered to Americans and was taken to Milan in custody.

In the north a new junction between American and Soviet forces loomed as the U. S. Ninth Army, pushing eastward from its bridgehead over the Elbe river, captured Zerbst. Zerbst is less than 30 miles

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS (By International News Service)

BELIEF GROWS AGREEMENT ON UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER REACHED

London—With Hitler humored to be dying or already dead, the belief was current in London today that the Allies already had reached an agreement with Germany on the matter of unconditional surrender to the U. S., Britain and Russia.

Confidence continued high in British Foreign Office circles that the European war was racing toward a close and that the next 48 hours may produce a vital development.

The authoritative British Press Association went as far as to speculate on the possibility that there may be a May Day announcement proclaiming the end of hostilities in Europe.

It was pointed out by the Press Association that the Red Army has striven to complete its conquest of Berlin by tomorrow and that the fall of the Reich capital is almost certain to mark the completion of the last great Soviet military operation. May Day always has been observed as a great Soviet occasion.

One of the latest unconfirmed reports emanating from Stockholm said that the Germans are attempting to contact the Russians there.

The German-controlled Danish radio reported today that a Swedish peace intermediary had left last night for the south after conferring with Germans at a castle near Aabenraa, 15 miles north of the German-Danish frontier.

Washington—The White House said today that when there is any actual authoritative surrender of Germany to the Allies that it will be announced by the White House.

Stockholm—The Stockholm radio reported today that a new surrender offer from Heinrich Himmler, addressed to the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia, will be communicated "within the next few hours."

the Government informed his wife of locating him. Last week a disficial ending of the intensive 30-tute millions in the war-devastated areas abroad continues.

Serviceable apparel and bedding donated now or in the im-terror and Axis cruelties.

National Piano Playing Auditions Are Scheduled

The annual national piano playing auditions will swing into action in Bristol tomorrow. Piano students of Helen Hillborn will play for Arthur Hice, of Philadelphia, a piano teacher of wide reputation.

Mr. Hice was a pupil of Tobias Matthay, of London, and an authorized exponent of his teachings. Mr.
Hice concertized in Europe and made his New York debut in 1929.
Since then he taught at the Curtis Institute, headed the piano department at Harcum Junior College, Bryn Mawr School; also taught at Haverford School. He is now on the faculty of Settlement Music School, Philadelphia.

The auditions are nation-wide, beginning May 1st, and ending July 1st. In 1944 more than 15,000 piano students from the east coast to the west took part.

The auditions here tomorrow will be private, and will be held in Bristol Presbyterian Church from nine a. m. to 2:15 p. m.

EDWARD J. FLANAGAN FREED FROM GERMANS

Newportville Soldier Had Been Prisoner Since January

WAS HELD AT GRUNAU

NEWPORTVILLE, Apr. 30—Information from Europe brings news to Mr. and Mrs. John Flanagan, Ritter avenue, that their son, Pfc. Edward J. Flanagan, has been released from a German prison camp.

Release of Flanagan from a camp at Grunau, Germany, was effected by the Sixth Armored Division, 3rd U. S. Army, on April 13th, according to information from army headquarters.

Flanagan was reported missing in France as of January 9th.

The young man's brother, Pfc.
John Flanagan, of the U. S. Marine Corps, lost his life in action in the Pacific area last September.

V-E Day Rumor Received Quietly by Localites

The rumor of the capitulation of Germany to the Allies, which set America on edge Saturday evening, was received quietly by residents of Bristol and vicinity.

Anxious to hear such good news officially confirmed, localites stuck close to their radios for many hours, some not giving up hope that such confirmation would come until well into the morning hours.

With announcement by President Truman over a nation-wide hook-in that surrender of the enemy had not taken place, the populace lost some of their interest in the report it still awaited some word.

V-E DAY SERVICES

Announcement is made that the services in individual churches of Bristol following news of the surrender of Germany, if received at five p. m., or later, will be held at one o'clock the following morning.
Otherwise these separate services will be held three hours after receipt of the news of arrival of V-E day. Should the news be received Saturday at five p. m. or later the regular church services of the following morning will take the place of the special services marking V-E day. This official announcement was made today by the Rev. George E. Boswell, dean of the Bristol protestant clergymen.

PLANS FOR V-E DAY IN BRISTOL

When V-E Day is announced, residents of the Bristol area are requested to mark the occasion with a spirit of prayer and thanksgiving.

Arrangements made by the Bristol Ministerium are for a service of prayer and thanksgiving in every church in Bristol three hours after the news is received. If, however, the news is received at 5 p. m. or later, the services in the individual churches will be held at 5 a. m. the following day. If the information should be received on Sat- day at five p. m. or later, the regular Sunday morning services will take the place of the special services marking V-E Day.

At eight p. m., following receipt of the news there will be a mass meeting in the Grand Theatre unless the day should be on a Saturday or Sunday.

Air raid sirens and whistles will be sounded in a distinctive signal upon receipt of the information that peace has been declared in Germany.

Whistles will be given six blasts of 5 seconds each with a 5 second interval between each blast, then a 2 minute silent interval and the 6 blasts repeated, another 2 minute silent interval and the 6 blasts repeated. This will make 3 series of 6 blasts apiece.

Church bells and other bells will be sounded for 3 one minute periods with a 2 minute interval between each. It seems to be the opinion of the municipalities in this county that no demonstration such as a parade or other celebration be staged at this time.

The thought back of this is that we will still be at war in the Pacific and out of respect to those who have lost their lives or have been injured we desire from any display of this type.

OCTOPUS

The older generation, which couldn't turn to the "funnies" to read about Dick Tracy and Superman, had H. G. Wells instead.

One of the most fascinating of Wells' stories is "Food of the Gods," which has the typical Wellsian linking of comedy and tragedy, as well as the also typical understanding of the disasters which usually result from meddling with natural laws.

Those who remember the story will probably chuckle again at being reminded of the distress of the parents who fed the "food" to their offspring—and then saw the chubby darlings start growing industriously into mature stature of some thirty feet tall.

Part of the eventual tragedies grew out of the impossibility of discipline over these giant babies—the comic picture of a mother undertaking to chastise a half-grown tot four times her size doesn't need much elaboration.

The United States Congress stands today in somewhat the relation of these parents to one of its own offsprings—the American Department of State.

After a reasonably orderly century and a half, someone early in the New Deal fed a sort of "food of the gods" to the State Department—and the growth and expansion since then is so incredible that few citizens have any understanding of what is taking place.

For generations the State Department was a stuffy bureau, clinging to its traditions, worried interminably over protocol, and in effect a small sub-office of the White House.

That's all over now.

Today—and even more so in the future—the Department emerges as the most influential government agency in the United States. It is the biggest "big business" in the world.

Its budget is in the millions—but its influence covers billions.

The lusty infant now towers over all his elders.

Because, with its treaty-making powers, the Department of State can write laws which are just as binding as any on the statute-books, the Department is in a measure supreme to Congress, Courts and Constitution.

Because beneath its velvet glove is the cold threat of possible war, it can speak with an austere and ominous voice that may, on occasion, over-awe even a president.

Because it controls, through trade agreements, our trade with foreign nations in control our own domestic trade and industry.

Because it holds life or death powers over all forms of employment in the United States, able to stifle them or stimulate them by turning off or on foreign competition, it dominates such other branches of government as the Department of Labor, Commerce, the Interior, Agriculture, etc.

Because it treads the hallowed paths of "international diplomacy" it can do with impunity what might shame other agencies of government; it can, for example, spend $70,000,000 in five years for "publicity" trying to get Latin-American nations in the right frame of mind for the recent Mexican conferences.

Quite fitting is it that Congress a few years ago lined up the Secretary of State as successor to the Presidency if a Vice President were to become incapacitated to

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Rearguards Fight Savagely to Keep Escape Routes Open

Rome—Nazi rearguards fought savagely with American Fifth Army spearheads at the northern end of Lake Garda today in a desperate attempt to keep the Italian escape routes of the fleeing Germans open.

Sweeping advances were made by the Americans between the liberated cities of Milan and Genoa where they captured Alessandria after encountering only light opposition.

The British Eighth Army, completing the occupation of ancient Venice, consolidated its positions beyond the Piave River.

The British also encountered stiff opposition as the Germans fought a dogged delaying action covering their retreat from northeastern Italy.

Nazi Parachutists Are Dropped Into Berlin

Moscow—Battlefront reports from Berlin said today that Nazi parachutists were being dropped down into the stricken German capital last night to keep the city open.

Accounts from the embattled metropolis said that the slaughter inside Berlin had attained new heights as the German garrison commander continued to sacrifice the lives of his troops in an unprecedented manner.
German forces were reported being thrown recklessly into the bloody fight. Latest official word from the Soviet High Command was that the Red Army had captured 100 more blocks in the heart of Berlin and that the Russians had liberated more than 12,000 additional prisoners of war.
Soviet bomber crews and artillerymen were reported under orders to blast the Germans out of their remaining strongpoints in Berlin as the battle for the city neared a climax.

Members of the Hitler youth were reported found in numerous buildings acting as observers for German artillery officers.

2nd Lt. Emma Stephenson In Texas for Training

CAMP SWIFT, Tex., Apr. 30—Second Lieut. Emma E. Stephenson, 415 Jefferson avenue, Bristol, Pa., is one of the nearly 200 newly-commissioned officers here for the second class of the Army Nurses Training Center.

Since they are graduate nurses the purpose of the training is not so much to further their technical qualifications as it is to give them mental and physical conditioning for duty with Medical Corps installations.

In fatigues, leggings and helmet liners, they will drill, take calis-thenics, hikes, modified obstacle courses and attend classes on army and hospital administration. Col.
A. K. Brown, Commanding Officer, says the course was designed to "develop certain highly desirable qualities among which are morale, discipline, health, strength and endurance, initiative, leadership and teamwork."

Climaxing the training program during graduation week is an all-day field problem, a nine-mile hike with a 20-pound pack and an overnight bivouac.

Following their graduation, May 11, they will be assigned to various hospitals and units.

LECTURE COURSE IS ENJOYED IN SCOTLAND

Major Andrew G. Solla Tells of Those of Many Nations Mingling

PREPARED BY ARMY

Major Andrew G. Solla, who is serving as a chaplain with the U. S.
Army in the European area writes:
The Bristol Courier as follows:

Recently it was my privilege to take a special course at Saint Andrew's University in Scotland.
These courses, which are being held at various British Universities, were prepared by the Educational Section of the Army, not only to improve one's mind, but also to get to know one another better.

In my class there were 12 Americans from both the army and the navy. There were also English, Scotts, Australians and Canadians.
We all worked, ate, and played together and thus learned to appreciate one another's point of view.

It was my duty, as well as privilege, to be a sort of dean of the American section by virtue of senior rank, and the cooperation that I received from my fellow Americans was 100 per cent.

The course consisted of lectures on: Democracy, the work and activities of the British Council, peace making in 1945, hydro-electricity in Scotland, juvenile delinquency, as well as attending regular university classes in philosophy, theology, history and economics. Depending on what the student was interested in, and last but not the least, Scottish country dancing which when done properly as it was by a group of young women indeed is very graceful.

Saint Andrews, aside from being the capital of the royal and ancient game of golf, going back to the early part of the 15th Century is also the religious and educational capital of Scotland.

The early history, especially from the religious point of view, is shrouded in tradition and legend.
According to one of these legends, a Greek Monk by the name of Saint Regulus (Rule) sailed there in the 4th century, bringing with him certain relics from the shrine of Saint Andrew and established himself in a cave east of the present castle. Later on a companion of Saint Columba from Iona founded a little monastery and in the 10th century the first bishop was appointed and thus became a See.

In 1472 it was raised to the Metropolitan Status from its creation it enjoyed a position of primacy in the Scottish Ecclesiastical set up and in a real sense for the greater part of 700 years, Saint Andrews was the Ecclesiastical Capital of Scotland. To understand this, one has to look at the ruins of the old cathedral. It has 14 bays in the nave arcade, and the length was 257 feet.

Then there were the different parishes, beside the chapels of the Blackfriars and others. The church of the Holy Trinity today also known as the "Town Kirk, The Church of Saint Salvador," which at present is used as University Chapel. This church was founded by Bishop Kennedy, and in the year 1458 he began the construction of a tower for himself, when it was completed, the cost was 10,000 pounds, or about $45,000. It was somewhat mutilated during the Reformation, but with it all, it is still in fair shape and the bones of the old bishop remain there to the present time. It is also in this church where John Knox's pulpit is kept. It gave the writer quite a thrill to stand in the same pulpit, in which and from which, the HULMEVILLE, Apr. 30—A tribute of honor was paid the memory

Church, that edifice being filled at three o'clock, the hour set for the memorial service.

Pfc. Davis, who lost his life in action in Germany on the 30th of January, was active in church and civic affairs, and many individuals who had been associated with him in various activities, as well as numerous relatives and friends assembled for the impressive ceremony.

Seated within the chancel were three members of the clergy—the Rev. Richard R. Gay, pastor of Nes-haminy Methodist Church; the Rev. Albert W. Eastburn, chaplain of Jesse W. Soby Post, No. 148, American Legion, of Langhorne, Church, here; and Capt. Frederick E. Morse, army chaplain who is stationed at Valley Forge Hospital.

Music for the day was provided by the Neshaminy Church choir.
Members of William Penn Fire Co., and the Ladies' Auxiliary of that as did also members of Jesse W.

Soby Post of the American Legion.
Hulmeville borough council was also represented. The deceased soldier was a member of the fire company, and was secretary of borough council. He was likewise a member of the Neshaminy Church,

AIR ROUTE PLANS

A survey of world air route plans indicates that the nations are bestirring themselves as greatly to establish air lines as they were 400 years ago to win colonies in the New World. If all the blueprinted airlines become realities, the skies will be so full of planes that collisions will be a common feature of air travel.

Both Britain and America have well developed plans for lines that will include nearly every country. The British make no secret of their conviction that they must be supreme in air transportation as they have been for centuries in ocean transportation. American routes and equipment already have a long head start, especially in the Western Hemisphere and the Pacific. Russia's plans undoubtedly are far-reaching.

Every small nation is similarly ambitious for air renown. Liberia proposes to cover Africa and span the Atlantic to America. The Portuguese want lines across Africa to the East Indies and to Brazil. China proposes to cover India, Burma, Malaya, Thailand, Indo-China, the Philippines, Japan and Korea. Eventually China expects to project scheduled flights to the East Indies, Australia, Europe, Africa, South America, West Indies, the United States and Canada.

If every nation is to cover the world with its airlines, the question is raised, where will all the lines find enough passengers to stave off bankruptcy?

OIL RECOVERY PROJECT

Last year California drilled 214 wildcat oil tests, only 15 of which produced oil. Worried about reserves to keep it near the top among producers, the state now is planning to apply a new method by which it hopes to recover 20,000,000,000 barrels of "lost" oil. This is the water flushing method.

Thousands of gallons of water are pressure-pumped down an exhausted well into strata of oil-bearing sands. The oil, which is not susceptible to ordinary pumping, then floats to the surface of the water and can be pumped out.

This method, known to the oil industry for 40 years, is new to the deep wells of California. Water has been extensively used in Pennsylvania and in some of the mid-continent fields. But success has been found only in shallow wells with thin sands containing high gravity oils. California wells are deep, sand formations are thick and oil is heavy.

California experts estimate only 25 per cent of the oil ever has been brought to the surface in that state and that 20,000,000,000 barrels so far have been unrecovered. It is further contended that 70,000,000,000 or 80,000,000,000 barrels could be recovered in the United States as a whole.

It sounds feasible unless the nation's water supply becomes exhausted before the project is completed.

What has become of the werewolves that were to succeed where Hitler's intuition failed?

ECHOES OF THE PAST
(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Oct. 23, 1884. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Already has one of the prisoners made an attempt to cut his way out of the new jail at Doylestown with a piece of iron pipe. . . .

The new Trenton and Morrisville Delaware bridge was opened for travel on Monday of this week. It will be found of great convenience to travel and will, no doubt, have a large and growing patronage. The bridge is an iron one, airy and light, with carriage track of usual width, and footwalk for pedestrians.

Fifteen dwelling houses have been erected so far this season in Morrisville, and 50 would have found occupants. With the varied and extensive industries of Trenton at the door, and cheaper rents than in that city, there is practically no limit to such improvements.

The new Bethany chapel for the better accommodation of the growing Sabbath School in Penns Manor, in charge of Rev. Mr. Hofford, and its preaching services, is in course of erection and will be finished before the winter sets in.

On last Friday the real estate situated in Bristol borough, the property of Ann Larzelere, deceased, was sold at public sale. It consisted of six dwelling houses. The half interest of a two-story frame on Cedar street was sold to William Larzelere for $370. A two-story brick dwelling on Cedar street was also purchased by William Larzelere for $1250.50. A brick and stone house on Bath street was bought by A. J. Hibbs for $1000; another dwelling on Bath street was bought by William Trudgeon for $1430, and William Kinsey bought two small houses on Otter street for $882.50. The total sales came within $115 of reaching the appraisement, and it is considered the properties brought a fairly good price.

Following items from Bucks Co. Gazette, issue of October 30, 1884: S. B. Ardrey & Sons have opened a machine and repair shop on Pond street, above Walnut. A castle of the Knights of the

SYNOPSIS

Daphne Willoughby had thrilled North Winterville when she danced with Carlo Abruzzi, a concert violinist. For eight years, until his death, she lived abroad. Letters from her to Kate Dennison and other friends back home were masterpieces of romantic imagination. After Carlo's death, Daphne worked for four years with Corinne Hollis, New York decorator. Then she returned, after an absence of twelve years, to the old home town where she was welcomed as a glamorous personality. Daphne rented the house which had been her cousin's and hired a part-time gardener called "Steve." A vivacious subdeb, "Buff" Turner, and the latter's beau, Perry Dawson, are helping with the gardening. One day Corinne Hollis arrived with an automobile of gay spirits from the Big City, including Alan Pembroke, architect and Daphne's ardent suitor. The hilarious rout lasted but a few hours and they departed merrily. Later Alan returned, interrupting a talk between Daphne and Steve. When the latter left, Alan lost no time. She protested his kiss but there was no annoyance in her voice. . . . Two months later, the village is celebrating the Fourth of July. Daphne, Kate, and Tommy Dennison, Jr., are going to attend a picnic that afternoon. Alan is expected to visit them that evening.

CHAPTER TEN
They were crossing the street row, and her eyes settled on a group of boys in navy uniform, talking to an older man, a naval officer. Roy Gates, hands in the pockets of his duck trousers, and eyes wistful, stood on the outer edge of the group.
"Look at Roy Gates," Daphne directed.
"What about it?"
"He wants to enlist now, I think," said Daphne.
"Well, he can't, because . . ."
Kate's explanation was cut short when she had to rescue her second oldest, Tommy from dangerous proximity to an over-sized fire-cracker.

Lucy Upham tooted the horn on her car. "Come on you two. We're waiting for you. The boys want a swim before lunch. Bill put all the hamper in your car, Daphne. You're coming with us. It's going to be a grand picnic."
Daphne got into the seat with Lucy, determined to shake off the feeling of doom that pervaded her. It was a grand picnic, a typical one. The water was too cold, the sun too hot, but nobody minded. There were cows who came to inspect the lunch, and ants, and mosquitoes. Lucy's son got a rail in his heel; Susan Fiske found a small snake and put it in a lunch hamper, and her mother fainted when she found it. Prue Fennell sprained a finger playing baseball, and working order now is good management and a wise investment of time. If the cooker must be sent to the manufacturer for adjustment, it may take a month or six weeks before it is returned to you. Wash the bottom part of the cooker in hot soapy water, rinse, and dry thoroughly. Never use strong soap or harsh scouring powders on aluminum. Stains may be removed with a paste made of whitening and vinegar. Use water instead of vinegar on enamelware. Never put the cover of the cooker in water but wipe it first with a cloth wrung out of soapsuds, then with a cloth wrung out of clear water, then dry thoroughly. Openings in the pet cock and safety valve may be cleaned by running a string down through the holes. Removable parts of the pet cock and safety valve may be soaked in vinegar a short time. Polish the ball and socket of the safety valve with silver polish. See that the edges of the kettle and cover are clean. Dried particles of food, dirt or sediment from hard water on the edges may prevent a tight seal and allow steam to leak out during the processing period. If the canner has a rubber gasket, remove it and wash well, then replace it. If necessary order a new gasket from the manufacturer. The pressure cooker gauge must be checked each year. Bring your gauge to the Agricultural Extension Association, 75 N. Main street, Doylestown, Pa., to have it tested.

BEAUTY PARADE

(Famous Make-up Advisor to the Screen Stars. Writing for I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Each woman whose appearance reflects the fact that she takes pride in it is a much more socially effective person than the one who presents an obviously apparent lack of such pride and perfection.

As a general thing the above fact is recognized to a satisfactorily wide degree. But, lack of constant neatness nevertheless is still an occasionally discernible flaw in the feminine glamour scene. A little observation will reveal that many women who at first glance seem to be at least completely groomed prove to be importantly lacking in detailed neatness.

And, do not forget that a superb degree of neatness is altogether as important to feminine glamour as the extra-attention of beauty that is provided by make-up grooming or richness of costume. These latter attentions can and do further feminine beauty, but they check the pressure cooker at once to avoid any delays.

By Mary Jacoby Fleetham

(Home Economics Representative)

Getting the pressure cooker in should invariably be supplied with the sound beauty foundations contained in the practice of the principles of neatness and cleanliness. The most frequent offender in the matter of feminine grooming neatness is probably smeared lipstick application. Such application should be smoothly and thinly applied, and should have sharply defined borders. If such precise neatness of lipstick applications is not originally established and then constantly maintained, the chief glamor value of lipstick is lost.

complete a Presidential term into which he had been elevated.

Quite fitting is it too that one of the most closely guarded spots in all Washington is the fenced-off area adjacent to the White House which embraces the main and subordinate State Department offices.

The tentacles of this octopus are spreading into all corners of American life.

Under the gilded promise of some mysterious plan of "world peace and prosperity," the influence of the Department is going through all our government like mold through cheese.

The earnings and jobs of all working Americans are the plaything of one relatively small branch of the State Department—the segment which plays put and take with the protective-tariffs.

Recent treaties give the Department certain authorities which are beyond the power of the American people to control by any normal means.

An interesting touch to this picture of expanding and overgrown power is that the Department's own employees are so poorly paid that a book about them is in process of being completed entitled "Tin Cup Diplomacy."

Americans may well watch with interest and concern the growing tug-of-war between the Department of State and the rest of the government—trying to settle the old question of whether the tail is going to wag the dog.

O Heavenly Father, make each of us truly sorry for the wrongs that we constantly do, and help us to grow better each day. Keep us, we beseech Thee, from all meanness and selfishness, and from hurting others by word or by deed. Grant that we may be more reverent and attentive to Thy Voice and that we may learn to know Thee better and to love Thee more. Guide our footsteps into the fulfilling of our duties with courage and cheerfulness and fearlessness. We ask it in Jesus' name, Amen.

BRISTOL HIGH WINS 4TH GAME; PLAYED IN TRENTON

Local Nine Defeats Trenton Catholic by Score of 6 to 5

AN EXTRA INNING

Home Run by Keyes Aids the Bristol Boys in Winning

Bristol High won its fourth straight game on Wetzel Field, Trenton, Friday afternoon, defeating Trenton Catholic, 6-5, in an extra inning game. In Bristol opening contest, Catholic beat the Bunsies, 10-4.

A home run by Howard Keyes aided the Bristol boys in their conquest of the Jerseyites. Going into the last inning, one was out when "Sunny" Fields reached base on an error. Keyes stepped to the plate and delivered a long home run to left field to score Fields ahead of him with the deadlocking runs.

Catholic went down in order in their half of the inning and in the eighth, the lads of Coach Harold Stackhouse went on to push over another tally to clinch the victory. Mari opened with a single off Cernusak's glove. Ed Capriotti bunted towards third base. Al Schipiski made a fast pickup but on his throw to first, no one was covering the bag and the ball rolled to right field. Mari scoring the winning marker.

mighty Knox thundered at Mary, the queen of the Scots. It was outside of this church that Patrick Hamilton was burnt at the stake for his faith in 1528.

Speaking of the University, here we may say that it was founded in 1411. Thus it is the third oldest in Great Britain, being preceded by Oxford and Cambridge. Its founder was Henry Wardlaw, bishop of Saint Andrews, and in 1413 Peter De Luna, whose seal is still used by the University, as Pope Benedict XIII, granted six Bulls, bestowing on the new University privileges of Studium Generale, with the power to grant degrees. The Bulls were received with great rejoicing, in which 400 clergy took part.

The ruins of the old castle are very interesting. It was started by Bishop Roger in 1200. It stands on a rocky promontory jutting into the Bay. During its history it was repeatedly besieged, captured, demolished, and rebuilt. It was in this castle in 1546 that Cardinal David Beaton was murdered followed quickly upon the Martyrdom of George Wishart. Often the inhabitants of the castle and the bishops fought one another and thus the cathedral time and again served as a fortress as well as the house of God.

We might say that Saint Andrew's, through Saint Regulus, Roger, Wardlaw, Kennedy, and others, was the capital of old Christianity. It also became the capital of the glorious Reformation, connected with Saint Andrew's, and especially with the old castle. For this information we shall read a paragraph or two from some old chroniclers. It was, "In the chapel within the castle," that John Knox read lectures to some of his pupils, and received his ministerial call, "whereat the said John, abashed, burst forth in the midst abundant tears, and withdrew himself to his chamber." It was from this castle also, in 1547, soon after the murder of Beaton that John Knox and other refugees were forced to row in the war galleys of that nation. Again we read from the old chroniclers: One day, "Lying betwix Dundee and Sanctandrews the second tyme the galleys returned to Scotland, the said John being so extremely weak that few hoped his life." He was asked to look to the land and see if he knew it. He answered, "yes, I knew it well; for I see the steeple of that place, where God first in public opened my mouth to his glory and I am fully persuaded, how weak that I ever now appear, that I shall not depart this life till that my young shall glorify his godlie name in the same place."

There is much more that we could say about Saint Andrew's, but time and space do not permit, and we must return to the routine of camp life, saying, "It has been good to have known you fair city with such an ancient and glorious history even though for such a brief time."

could say about Saint Andrew's, but time and space do not permit, and we must return to the routine of camp life, saying, "It has been good to have known you fair city with such an ancient and glorious history even though for such a brief time."

Quoting the words of one of its Alumni:
"Life has not since been wholly vain.
And now I bear
Of wisdom plucked from joy and pain Some slender share."

had to give. And now he stands in the presence of God." He spoke of the vicarious sacrifice made by the localite, reminding that "Vicarious sacrifice is a sacrifice that is made by somebody on behalf of somebody else. He gave himself for the imperishable things of earth." "But let us remember that the sacrifice of these young men in this war is utterly lost unless we can bring a revival of religion back to these United States. Our boys are praying as they never prayed before," the clergymen then urging that the lethargy of folks on the home front be a thing of the past. "The sacrifice of Wallace Davis and others is worthless unless it inspires you to give of your time to bring about in your community a condition of things for which they die."

Chaplain Morse, in his message, reminded that "For all of us the war is the passion of Christ. Sometimes, some of us will feel hopelessly alone. . . . In this loneliness we must see Christ as He knelt in the garden of Gethsemane and learn to know Him. We must see Him as He was on Calvary saying 'Not my will, but Thine.' He must be given ground so He can grow in all of us. If Christ is growing in you and is growing in me we are growing toward sacrifice. . . . If the spirit of sacrifice is growing in you then it is certain the spirit of Christ wakes strong in you."

"The thing that makes the giving up of those we know a sacrifice is that we are giving up something good and lovely."

The Rev. Mr. Gay, in his message considered "one of the most tantalizing questions of life 'Why do the good die?'" which he stated is "a question that has been answered in many ways but not to the satisfaction of all. . . . 'We realize that the Christian faith does not give us all the answers, but it does better than that—it gives us courage.' The clergymen then advised that the Christian faith answers this question in a true way 'The good do not die. Death is not a finality. When the body dies we acquire a house not made with hands. . . . The soul that came into being with the birth of Wallace Davis has moved triumphantly on.'"

Taps were sounded by PFC James Brant of the U. S. Marine Corps.

Partisans Execute Benito Mussolini

were executed Saturday by Italian Partisans. The story of his final downfall, his flight, his execution is not pretty, and its epilogue in the Piazza Loreto here yesterday morning was its ugliest part. It will go down in history as a finish to tyranny as horrible as any ever visited on a tyrant.

At 9:30 a. m. yesterday, Mussolini's body lay on the rim of the mass of corpses, while all around surged a growing mob wild with the desire to have a last look at the man who once was a Socialist editor in this same city. The throng pushed and yelled. Partisans strove to keep them back but largely in vain. Even a series of shots in the air did not dissuade them.

Mussolini had changed in death, but not enough to be any one else. His closely shaved head and his bull neck were unmistakable. His body seemed small and a little shrunken, but he was never a tall man. At least one bullet had passed through his head. It had emerged some three inches behind his right ear. There was another small hole nearer his forehead where another bullet seemed to have gone in.

As if he were not dead or dishonored enough, at least two young men in the crowd broke through and aimed kicks at his skull. On glanced off. But the other lands full on his right jaw and there was a hideous crunch that wholly disfigured the once-proud face.
